

Bubbly Fluid Flow Observation Jig

Craig E. Nelson - Consultant Engineer

This handy little device is for the purpose of observing bubbly fluid convection in micro-channels.

It incorporates a standard O-ring formed into an oval “race track” shape to seal against a standard microscope slide. The glass slide is the observation window.

I designed it using SolidWorks

